

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A picture providing service system, and the method thereof, with which users, being connected to a communication network, can use the contents with seeing other users' appearances, are disclosed. The picture providing service system comprises a user administration means for storing the information on the users, who want to use picture-related contents with being connected to a content providing system, into a database and administrating them; a video data processing means for storing each user's video data inputted through his(or her) PC having a digital camera into the database and editing the video data according to the user's control; an image data processing means for providing various images to the users, storing the images selected by the users into the database, and editing the selected images according to the users' demands respectively; and a data synthesizing means for synthesizing the video data and the image data.